eyes... the windows to the soul, reading souls is a hard job. With time I've learned that people actually can hide behind their irises.
I've realized that you can't only depend on these windows, because most of the time people will have their curtains up.

Seeing who someone truly is, behind the curtains, masks, shields, the first step is trust.

Trust is elusive, it's hard to catch... but once you have it, there's a spark. Something ignites, something changed... a connection has been tied, has been created.
You that is something that once you have it, hold on.
Respect it. It's truly a treasure to behold, don't abuse it... make it brighter ✱
